KYTAN DAEMON ENGINE OF KHORNE 525 POINTS

These striking, blood-soaked engines of glittering brass and subtle darkness are utterly malevolent creations, forged by the most malign Warpstone and Dark Magic as an act of prayer and supplication to the supreme Lord of Blood and battles as much as they are to sow havoc on the battlefield. The Kytan's profane design and ritually constructed body shares much of its dual form with the infamous Lord of Skulls, but whereas that war machine takes the form of a hybrid walker-tank behemoth, the Kytan is fully humanoid, choosing to form a Slaanesh warrior, and capable of crossing the battlefield with frightening speed and fighting with a Daemon's fury coupled with a durability and firepower akin to that of an Imperial Knight.

The first of these daemon engines, it is claimed by certain suppressed texts in the keeping of the Inquisition, was created by the twisted master of the hell-forge of Saturn in the dark years of anarchy and war which followed the Horus Heresy, and it is a fragment of this ancient foe of Mankind's own forbidden name that the Kytan carry as their own.

A Kytan Daemon Engine of Khorne may be used as a Lords of War choice in an army chosen from either the Chaos Space Marines, Khorne Daemonkin or Chaos Daemons Factions. When taken in a Khorne Daemonkin army, the Kytan Daemon Engine has the Blood for the Blood God! special rule (see Codex: Khorne Daemonkin). In addition, it may be selected instead of a Khorne Lord of Skulls in any Detachment where such a war machine is available.
